

Once upon a castle

Le Grand Saint Michel—open for lunch and dinner—serves a menu that embraces casual fine dining à la Française with a bistronomic ambiance and the finest quality, local ingredients. In the summer months, guests can dine on the terrace, with incredible views of the Chateau.

Chambord was built as a hunting lodge for King Francis I and the estate is still home to some of the best hunting in the area, especially wild boar and deer—all of which is reflected on the menu, alongside wonderful French country cooking. 🍷 relaisdechambord.com
